19 WOMEN IN SECTION GANG KILLED

Run Down by the Balkan Express in a Suburb of Berlin While Working.

Berlin, Nov. 13.—The Balkan express, which runs between Constantinople and Berlin, dashed at full speed today into a party of women section hands in a suburb of Berlin. Nineteen women were killed.

There was a heavy fog at the time. The women had stepped out of the way of a westbound train and did not observe the approaching Balkan express.

Every String Was Pulled.

It is coming out in the aftermath that the result in Indiana was largely influenced by political priests and preachers. Hon. John W. Boehne in a letter in the Evansville Courier says: "I have before me a set of resolutions signed by eight ministers of the Gospel representing seven different German Protestant denominations. These resolutions are pregnant with denunciation, false witnesses and hate, the concluding paragraphs of which I quote in part as follows:

"Resolved that we employ all our STRENGTH and INFLUENCE, and we hereby obligate ourselves to exert all our ENERGY for the election of Charles E. Hughes and request all GERMAN AMERICAN COLLEAGUES of ALL DENOMINATIONS to do the same, either by PERSONAL AGITATION or by spreading campaign literature or by neighborhood mass meeting as the circumstances may require."

This pernicious activity was carried out by these men of the cloth. These resolutions were sent to the pastors of different denominations with the request to distribute them among the congregations. Thank God, however, not many pastors allowed themselves to forget their divine calling so far as to take part in such a nefarious political activity, so unbecoming of a minister of the gospel."

Snapshot in Boston.

In Boston a photographer surreptitiously snapped a young blond. The young blond called him an impudent mammoth rept. He had strength enough left to grope for a dictionary, which informed him that in the young blond's eyes he was "a child reared by its grandmother; a spoiled child." If he were to pick that word up carefully and take it down to market, he might be able to sell it for its weight in gold.—New York Post.

NEVER LEARNED THE TRUTH

Callow Youngsters Might Have Repented of Their Condemnation if They Had but Known.

Youth and presumably innocence were waiting at a French goods counter while the clerk wrapped up jars of pink stuff which they didn't need. Each was audacious in the matter of short skirts, and both were chewing gum.

On a stool at the same counter sat another customer, a woman just facing the agony line which separates beauty from vandal age. And Youth and Innocence felt, called on to dissect her. They banded impressions as to the woman's looks, and giggled over her desperate attempts to retain her complexion and age. Their sharp young eyes took in the nobby dress that was almost shabby, and their sharp young voices would have stabbed her to the quick except that she seemed to be walled in by some concentrated thought that cloistered her from their blows.

"I bet she's bad."

The gum-stuck verdict came from Innocence, whose lawful place at that minute should have been in some eighth-grade schoolroom.

"Uccorse. Anybody'll tell that. Whodjessop would look at her but like her?"

Then Youth and Innocence, without explaining how they came to be so sordidly enlightened at their callow years, suddenly switched interest to their wrapped-up stuff, and—That was all there was to it.

Except that the woman, having bought and paid for her own little box of something, got up and hurried to the store entrance, where another woman stopped to congratulate her on some appointment obtained by her son:

"Isn't it splendid? Papa and I are so proud of him—I'm especially glad for papa, because he has been so depressed ever since his last attack—Ned's going to send him to Atlantic City right away—Imagined! After all these poverty-pinch days—"

"Well, you surely deserve all the good luck that's coming to you—Don't see how on earth you keep your color after all the nursing you've had to do—"

"Tooga, my dear. Papa'd be too worried for words if he knew my complexion had gone yellow—but Ned says I don't need it after this—"

This isn't much of a yarn, of course, but we have Plutarch's word for it that truth is always worth considering. And this is true.—Washington Star.

Scientists Study "Flying Sickness."

"Flying sickness" in its more essential particulars is deserving of careful and scientific investigation, according to the London Lancet. It raises matters of interest in connection with so-called mountain sickness. Edward Whymper states from his own experience of this condition that the abiding symptoms are profound lassitude, intense headache, feverishness, accelerated respiration and occasional spasmodic gulping of air. "Just like the fishes when taken out of water," palpitation and tinnitus. The latter two symptoms, no doubt, occur also with great frequency at relatively low levels.

"It is clear," says the Lancet, "that flying sickness is not comparable in the strict sense with mountain sickness, in spite of the fact that some of the symptoms are more or less identical. Hitherto we have had little direct evidence of what occurs as a result of rapid transference from high to low altitudes, for the laborious ascent of the mountaineer into regions air is very different from a speedy return to normal pressures, while the climb of a flying machine is hardly so rapid as to cause any ill effect. The pilot who is lifted from his machine, after a fast volplane, in a semiconscious condition, falling thereafter into a deep sleep, shows a phenomenon not met with either in mountain sickness or in caisson disease."

To Promote Safety.

The newest museum in New York is called the American Museum of Safety. It contains collections of models, charts and photographs, actual machines safeguarded in full size, together with models of safety devices and sanitary appliances. The museum is free to the public. By special arrangement it is open in the evenings to classes and societies. The activities of the museum of safety are devoted to the safety, health and welfare of industrial workers and the advancement of the science of industry. The society gives yearly medals to those which make notable achievements in devices for the security of human life, and to firms that make notable progress in the promotion of hygiene and the mitigation of occupational disease in their industry, and to railroads that promote safety for the traveling public.

Japanese Turn to Dye Making.

The Japanese are apparently going to take up dye making, now that German products cannot be obtained and the plan has been taken up by private enterprise, assisted by government. A number of business men were invited to the department of agriculture and commerce one day lately and shown the draft law for the encouragement of the manufacture of drugs and dyes. The vice-minister of agriculture and commerce reported particulars regarding the encouragement law, and invited those present to give their views, without reserve, regarding the establishment of a company. It was subsequently decided that those present should consider the matter, and give their views later.

FORCE OF EXAMPLE.

"Even Jim's dog has got the camera habit."

"What do you mean?"

"He takes a snap at anybody he meets."

TOO BAD.

"Even brooms are getting higher."

"Now of all those things, you would expect to find a sweeping reduction in brooms."

CONCESSION TO THE SABBATH.

She—I suppose you play golf the same on Sunday as on any other day. He—No; I refrain from swearing at the caddie on the Sabbath.

ITS LOCATION.

"Did the choir sing that chorus in unison?"

"No; it sang it in the practice room."

THE RULE.

"Officer, can I speed my horse on this road?"

"Sure, nobody kin race on this road unless he goes at a walk."

Optimistic Thought.

KILLS PAIN

This was a bad year for the bosses. Lippitt of Rhode Island, Dupont of Delaware and Sutherland of Utah, republicans, and Taggart of Indiana are among the defeated candidates for the United States senate.—Evansville Courier.

The Department of Agriculture has a staff of more than 16,000 people devoting their whole time to the improvement of agriculture, the investigation of marketing problems, and the enforcement of Federal laws.

Bull associations reduce the cost of the services of a pure-bred bull for the dairy herd. The average annual cost of service in a large number of associations, investigated by the United States Department of Agriculture was $3.48 for each member.

Cost of a Villa.

When the Smiths' suburban villa was completed and they counted costs, it appeared that the painter's bill was $82 in excess of the paperhanger's charges, the plumber charged $30 more than the painter; the mason received $160 more than the plumber and the carpenter, who charged $24 more than the mason, rendered a bill three times as large as that of the paperhanger. The lot cost half as much as the house, so who can tell how much the Smiths' new home cost?
